> Helen had been injured while alighting from a Lexington avenue cable car at nd, according to her and her family, she has since been a helpless cripple. They all said that she was in the act of stepping off said that she was in the act of stepping off the car, and that the car started too soon, and she was hurled to the ground and re-ceived injuries of the spine. These injuries had since developed into all sorts of dis-eases, and since the accident she has been confined to her bed most of the time. When she was able to rise she could only walk a few steps, and even this exertion made her faint.

One Witness a Perjurer. When Helen was first hurt her parents conceived the idea of suing the railroad company which was responsible for her in-

DETROIT'S $700,000 FIRE. The Opera House and All the Costumes

and Scenery of Julia Arthur's "A Lady of Quality."

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 7 .- Five large buildngs and two smaller ones with sil their f Detroit and bounded by the Campus, Martius, Woodward, Gratiot and Monroe venues. The total loss is estimated at 600,000 to $700,000.

The blaze started shortly before 1 o'clock on the stage of the Detroit Opera House, ted to return ore the 10th was not noticed until the flames leaped

The origin of the fire is not determined. It was not noticed until the flames leaped out at the rear of the theatre following a blowing out of a rear wall by the explosion of a calcium light.

The Opera House burned at a terrific rate, the interior being a solid mass of flames. Meanwhile the ten-story fireproof structure, so-called occupied by the Henry R. Leonard Furniture Company, got after the upper stories. The flames swept through its inflammable contents from the rear to the Gratiot avenue front, until within two hours nothing remained but the steel frame work of the building. The other buildings destroyed were: The C. H. Michel Table Supply Company, store; C. H. Werner's Cnekery House, the Grand Union Tea Company, the Central Storage Company and Vaughan & Tanner.

A side wall of the latter building fell upon the roof of a two-story structure occupied by the Parislan Laundry, which was badly wrecked and partly consumed. On the Monroe avenue side, a small shoe store was crushed to fragments by the fall of the east wall of the Werner building. The early morning hour sud the rapid sweep of the fire prevented saving any of contents to speak of. Among the losses was that of the Julia Arthur Dramatic Company, which was playing its first engagement in "A Lady of Quality." All of its handsome costumes and stage settings were destroyed. Miss Arthur was prostrated over this serious blow to her enterprises.

to Helen's suit were secured by an agent for the railroad company. Hearing that Helen was not always ill and not quite blind, the lawyers secured a man with a kodac, and he one day found Helen rowing a party of young friends in Central Park Lake. Helen was the gayest of the party and was evidently the strongest, for she was doing all the rowing. Then, too, her eyes were very good thut day, for she saw the man with the kodac and was pleased, for her friends told her that she was so pretty the man wanted her picture.
